Last Time I Checked This Was Still a Democracy, Isn't It? (Amy Cann) Duple improper /

A1	The dance was first presented during a cold night in Nelson during tax season. The caller said "gypsy," but some dancers decided that they'd rather do-si-do. One couple started a swing. When the caller reminded them that she'd said "gypsy," a dancer replied that he'd been working on his taxes all day and was tired of following directions. So now the call is to do whatever you wish (default is a swing), as long as you are ready in time to go down the hall at the top of A2.
